COURSE OBJECTIVES

The course offers a critical analysis of visual culture through the exploration of key ideas and debates such as the meanings of the term 'visual culture,' theoretical approaches to contemporary analysis, and the impact of cultural, social, and historical contexts on various forms of visual expression. Students will examine topics such as relationship between vision, power and knowledge, materiality and immateriality of images, the constitution of images, the intersection of power and vision, the political dimensions of visibility, spectatorship, racial and sexual differences in visual representation, and the role of images in consumer culture within contemporary globalized societies.

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Understand the concept and role of visual culture and its relevance to specific discipline.
2. Analyze and interpret the various forms of visual expression encountered in everyday life.
3. Evaluate and apply a range of theories that address fundamental questions about the role of images in understanding, knowing, and communicating.
4. Equip themselves with the analytical skills and theoretical knowledge necessary for critically engaging with visual culture.
5. Communicate insights and analyses effectively, both orally and in writing, demonstrating a clear understanding of the course concepts.
